RAISING GOLDFISH.

THE TWO LARGEST FARMS IN THE WORLD ARE IN INDIANA.

Correcting Some Popular Errors About Goldfish—The Raiser Has Great Difficulty in Fighting Off the Pest Worms—Goldfish With Many Tails.

Goldfish are so extremely common that few people ever stop to think of them as coming from or how they are raised. Comparatively little is known about the little cold blooded creatures that swim about in the basins in so many homes. The raising of them is a careful and systematic business and is greatly appreciated by those who expect to get them for small ponds or for the city.

The largest goldfish farm in the world, which may be called such, is located in 35 miles from Indianapolis, Ind., about 30 miles from Indianapolis. Here the original goldfish men of the country have their propagating institution.

There are two farms, several miles apart, which are devoted to the different branches of the industry. In the north part of the county is one farm of eight or ten acres. The other is a few miles further south and is about half again as large as the first one.

Today there are in the various ponds of Spring Lake Esbary over 200,000 fish, from which specimens are constantly being sent to every state and territory of the Union. It is even said that some of the finest fish in the royal aquariums of Europe were raised by Mr. Shoup and his partner at this farm.

On each of the farms spoken of are a large number of small ponds, some of them not much larger than ten feet square. These ponds are all connected with each other by little channels, so that the water and fish can be let from one to the other without the least difficulty.

Tho, breeding ponds, which are, of course, the most important, are protected from the wind and cold by high embankments around the edges. This is all the protection that is necessary for the fish, even in the winter time, so it is seen that, although the fish are un-

The weakest place in a house or fort, or any place of defense, usually turns out to be that which was thought the strongest. The weakest place in a man's body is that in which he esteems himself strongest. Achilles never thought he would turn his heel to an enemy, but it was in that unarmored place the fatal arrow was planted. It is usually the organ in his body that a man thinks the strongest, that disease assaults and baffles down. Caution a man about neglecting his health and mental consumption, and he will pound his chest and laugh you to scorn. He does not realize that consumption beats down this disease upon him, inch by inch. The lungs once attacked the only weapon of defense is the right remedy.

98 per cent. of all cases of consumption are cured by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It corrects disordered digestion, invigorates the liver, makes the appetite hearty and assimilation perfect, fills the blood with the elements that build healthy flesh and muscle, and drives all impurities and disease germs from the blood. All druggists sell it.

"I have used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery' in my family," writes Mrs. C. A. Coomer of Allegheny Springs, Montgomery Co., Va., and have found it to be the best medicine that I ever used. I have also used his 'Compound Extract of Smart-Weed,' and 'Pleasant Pellets.' They will do just what they are recommended to do.

The newly-wedded wife, above all other women, needs a good medical book. Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser fills this want. It contains over 1000 pages and 300 illustrations. Several chapters are devoted to the physiology of the organs distinctly feminine. Send 21 one-cent stamps, to cover cost of mailing only, to the World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y., for a free copy, paper-covered. If health is wanted, it is wanted, send 10 cents extra (31 cents in all).

doubtedly delicate, they are much more hardy than is generally supposed.

Several times a year the fish are sorted in the different ponds and classified so that the largest and finest ones will be together, and those which will not bring such good prices will be by themselves. Many people suppose that when the goldfish is first hatched from the egg it has the peculiar pretty markings on its scales which make it so beautiful and valuable.

This is not the case. In its youth in reality the fish is just the same as any ordinary and everyday fish, and looks like it for all the world. Even an expert could scarcely tell it from the little minnows which are found in any stream. They are of a whitish, silvery color, and have not the least evidence of the beautiful hues which they will later assume.

Sometimes, however, the goldfish grower is sadly disappointed in finding that his fish fail to acquire the golden tint for which he has so long been looking in vain. There have been many instances time and again in which the fish never did change to the reddish color, but grew to be several years old, retaining their white, silvery, youthful complexion. Ordinarily, however, the fish develop the golden shade in less than a year.

First, they begin getting dark, sometimes becoming almost black. From the dark complexion they begin turning to the reddish shade, and finally come out in all their glory, full fledged goldfish.

The food has not, as many people suppose, the least thing to do with coloring the fish. All the fish are fed exactly the same thing, toasted bread two or three times a week, and nothing else is given them for their subsistence. The sun seems to be the necessary agent and the only one to complete the scheme of nature, and even this sometimes does not work successfully.

The greatest difficulty with which the goldfish raiser has to contend is the pest world. Snakes, cats, coons, frogs and insects innumerable are all fall destroyers of the goldfish, and the crawfish is by no means a second in the destruction which he can work when he gets in the neighborhood of the finny tribe. Some one must be kept constantly on watch at the season of the year when these insects and little animals abound to see that they do not get into the water of the pond where the fish are.

The sting of some insects will kill a fish in almost every instance. Snake feeders and some other well known insects fly close to the surface of the water in the summer time and with the greatest ease touch the tiny little fish swimming near the surface of the pond. An egg is laid on the fish or a stinger inserted, and either will invariably prove fatal.

The freaks and unusual developments in the fish are the varieties which will always bring the best prices in the market. Odd and rare colors and spots upon the scales are the marks which are preferred by fanciers. Unusual shapes in the fishes are equally popular with oddities in colors and will cause a fish to bring as good a price as if it had orange or purple scales.

In physical developments the great varieties are in respect to the tail. One never finds two headed fish, but those with more than one tail are plentiful. Two, three, four and five tails are quite often found on the fish and sometimes even six, but the latter is very rare. Of course a fish with six tails would bring a handsome price in any market.

Goldfish are often killed by overattention, but some times by lack of attention. The two things which above all should be avoided are overfeeding them and failure to keep fresh water in the aquarium. An even, moderate temperature should be maintained, and they should be kept in the dark at night.—Chicago Tribune.

Friend (writing to the)—You are not looking very happy. Why can't you enjoy life?

Answer (writing to the)—(With a sigh)—I don't know. I don't really ever have a chance to enjoy life.

FEAST OF THE CHERRIES.

The Story of the Children Who Saved the City of Hamburg.

Hamburg was besieged. Wolff, the merchant, returned slowly to his home one morning. Along with the other merchants of the city he had been helping to defend the walls against the enemy, and so constant was the fighting that for a whole week he had worn his armor day and night. And now he thought bitterly that all his fighting was useless, for on the morrow want of food would force them to open the gates.

As he passed through his garden he noticed that his cherry trees were covered with ripe fruit, so large and juicy that the very sight was refreshing. At that moment a thought struck him. He knew how much the enemy was suffering from thirst. What would they not give for the fruit that hung unheeded on the trees of his orchard. Might he not, by means of his cherries, secure safety for his city?

Without a moment's delay he put his plan into practice, for he knew there was no time to be lost if the city was to be saved. He gathered together 300 of the children of the city, all dressed in white, and loaded them with fruit from his orchard. Then the gates were thrown open, and they set out on their strange errand.

When the leader of the army saw the gates of the city open and the band of little white-robed children marching out, many of them nearly hidden by the branches which they carried, he at once thought that it was some trick by which the townspeople were trying to deceive him while preparing for an attack on his camp. As the children came nearer he remembered his cruel vow, and was on the point of giving orders that they should all be put to death.

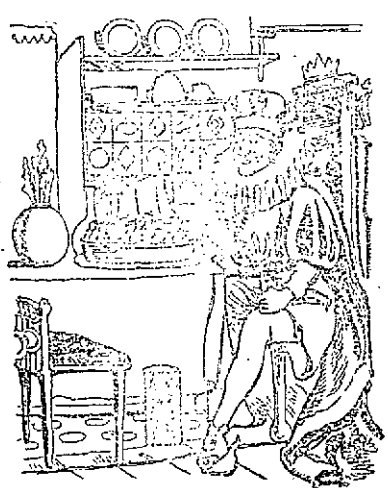

But when he saw the little ones so close at hand, so pale and thin from want of food, he thought of his own children at home, and he could hardly keep back his tears. Then, as his thirsty, wounded soldiers tasted the cool, refreshing fruit which the children had brought them, a cheer went up from the camp, and the general knew that he was conquered, not by force of arms, but by the power of kindness and pity.

When the children returned, the general sent along with them wagons laden with food for the starving people of the city, and the next day signed a treaty of peace with those whom he had vowed to destroy.

For many years afterward, as the day came around on which this event took place, it was kept as a holiday and called "the Feast of the Cherries." Large numbers of children in white robes marched through the streets, each one bearing a bunch with bunches of cherries on it. But the old writer who tells the story is careful to say that the children kept the cherries for themselves.

Every age of the world's history has its tales of war and bloodshed and cruelty, of wild struggles and of great victories. But nowhere among them all do we find the story of a more beautiful victory than that which was won by the little children who saved Hamburg.—Toronto Saturday Night.

Almsgiving and Religion.

For many years almsgiving has been regarded by the church as a mere accessory to religion, and too often as a means of procuring attendance at its services and classes. Now time has worked out its revenge, and the people have come to regard services and classes—and, indeed, religion itself so far as they know it—as accessory to almsgiving and as a means of obtaining relief. It would sometimes seem as if the only hope for both lay in an entire divorce between the two.—"Rich and Poor," by Mrs. Bosanquet.

HOBBS

PREDICTION COMES TRUE.

During The Past Three Weeks There Has been in Reno a Great Reduction in the Sufferings of Those Afflicted With Kidney Ailments.

Some Retail Druggists Estimate This Reduction as High as Thirty Three Per Cent.

Hobbs' Sparagus Kidney Pills Are Doing Heroic Work.

The great mass of testimonials received in favor of Dr. Hobbs' Sparagus Kidney Pills must, as a matter of course, be held sacredly confidential, but many of the cured patients from different sections of the country are anxious to have their letters published for the benefit of others who are suffering from kidney diseases as they did.

In the face of the convincing evidence that has appeared in these columns in favor of this harmless but highly efficient remedy, and the general publicity that has been given to the matter, it would appear to the average person that any one who was suffering from kidney disease would by this time have taken advantage of Dr. Hobbs' grand discovery and thoroughly proven specific.

However, for the benefit of those who may still doubt the curative powers of Dr. Hobbs' Sparagus Kidney Pills we herewith append to this article more convincing proof:

One of the Best Known Men in Michigan Endorses Dr. Hobbs' Sparagus Kidney Pills—Say They Work Like a Charm.

A reporter called on Col. A. T. McReynolds of 325 Madison Ave., Grand Rapids, and found a man ninety years of age, remarkable well preserved, and in reply to his question told the following interesting experience: "I am ninety years old and have lived in the state of Michigan for sixty-three years, holding many political positions during that time. I suppose I am one of the best known men in this State to-day. I have not known what it was to be sick or have a doctor until a year ago last winter, when I was taken with a gripe which, after getting over the acute stage settled in my kidneys and bladder causing me a great deal of pain and trouble ever since. My feet and ankles were swollen to twice their normal size. I thought old age had a good deal to do with my condition, and had resigned myself to remain a sufferer for the rest of my life. But I noticed where the newspapers were to test Dr. Hobbs' Sparagus Kidney Pills, and thinking I was a good subject, I applied for a box, which they sent me. I started taking them at once and to my surprise, as well as satisfaction, I began to improve from the very start. I am now using my first regular box that I got from my druggist after the samples were used up. I find that the pains in my bladder and kidneys have left me entirely, and the swelling has disappeared from my feet. In fact, all the weakness and bad symptoms have gone, and I cannot find words to express my gratitude to the Hobbs' Remedy Co. for bringing before my notice a remedy that does the work in such a satisfactory manner as Dr. Hobbs' Sparagus Kidney Pills. They work like a charm, and I take pleasure in being able to tell my friends what they have done for me.

THE STATE UNIVERSITY.

The most successful year of the State University will close on the third day of June. The closing exercises proposed are more elaborate than in any year preceding, which is in harmony with the advance made in all departments.

The students have shown by their deportment during the year, more devotion to their work than formerly. The moral standard of the student body has continued to rise till it is noticed and commended by casual observers who take an interest in the present and future of the University. The work that has been carried forward within the last two years is not understood as it should be by the people. As it is in most beginnings, so it is at the University—haste in some particulars is made slowly. The proper arrangement of educational departments and work in these departments, together with work required to procure the necessary appropriations from the State to provide such buildings and other facilities as were necessary for the accommodation of students, also work imposed by necessity of supervising the construction and details in finishing and furnishing these buildings, and many other matters that called for personal attention made a task for President Stubbs that no ordinary man could in so short a time have accomplished.

Much of this work is finished and all of it will be complete in the near future. When the work is finished the doctor will have more time to devote to general details, among which will be provision of means whereby more thorough and detailed information will be given to the people upon educational matters and general work at the University. The average attendance of students through the year is three hundred, which attendance is a strong argument against hard times in Nevada, or is a convincing declaration that our mountain people are willing to make any sacrifice to give their children the advantages to be derived from a liberal education.

There are in the United States fifty-four colleges. These colleges are graded and estimates made from ascertained data, Nevada's University stands twenty-one in efficiency in general work. Doctor True, who is Director of all the experiment stations in the United States, classes the work of Nevada's Experiment Station about the middle, and this and more before a foundation for a beginning is made. With such a record now, what will the University not do under the efficient management of President Stubbs when it has passed the pin-feather period? It will equal, when the Gymnasium is completed, in extent and variety of courses and study any college in the United States. There is much talk and little said about the cost the University is to the State, which is history repeating itself. All who are well past middle life and who have worked and aided in the development and up-building of the North-west and Greater West have heard "over and again" the same objection made respecting public institutions, that every commonwealth must have for the education of its children and youth and for the care of the unfortunate. While the people in new States and Territories talked about cost, they worked, and as a result of talk and work an empire is built where the redman hunted sixty years ago undisturbed by the encroachment of a pale face. When the work at the University and its environment, are taken into relation with business in the State and its environment, the people are doing well by the University and President Stubbs and the corps of young men, professors who so efficiently aid him, are doing an educational work unsurpassed in the college history of the country.

HOW SOME SENATORS MAKE MONEY.

The Chicago Times-Herald was among the most virulent goldbug papers in the Presidential campaign. Its owner, with Mr. Hanna, organized the syndicate which took up the notes of Mr. McKinley to the amount of $115,000 when that gentleman became insolvent a few years ago. It is not probable, therefore, that it would misrepresent any act of the Republicans, except for party advantage, so what it feels constrained to say against the party may be accepted as true. It now states that when the Republican members of the Senate Finance Committee was amending the sugar schedule of the Dingley bill they concluded to make the most of the opportunity which their position afforded to increase their bank account. They arranged the sugar schedule favorably to the trust a week before the bill was reported and let a few friends into the secret. It appears that Mr. Kohlsat of the Times-Herald was not among the number. Three senators, presumably those who had charge of the bill, had 9,900 shares of sugar stock purchased on their account by a Washington broker besides a large number of shares purchased by the close friends to whom the secret had been confided. When the Senators had loaded up, the bill was reported to the Senate, and sugar trust stock bounded from $114 to $115 per share. The Senators unloaded, clearing $30,000 by the operation, and the Times-Herald which knew nothing of the transaction until too late, now gives the whole thing away.

This is Republicanism, as illustrated at Washington to-day by the leaders of the party of great moral ideas. The Republicans of the Finance Committee secretly agreed upon a sugar schedule and persistently refused to let the other members of the Committee see the schedule until it was reported to the Senate. They used their position as representatives of the people, to give the sugar trust greater opportunity to plunder their constituents, to make money themselves by the advance in the price of sugar trust stock. The people, of course, have to pay for all this, as sugar has advanced nearly a cent a pound since the bill was reported, and many simple, but well-meaning people, seem to believe that this is good for the country. The great showman and Prince of Humbugs, Phineas T. Barnum was right when he said "The American people liked to be humbugged and were willing to pay handsomely for the privilege of being taken in."

LOS ANGELES SILVER MEN.

W. J. Bryan, the people's champion, has been invited to deliver the Fourth of July oration at Los Angeles, which is the only city of large size north of Mason & Dixon's line, that was unaffected by Mr. Hanna's campaign fund. Five thousand Silver Republicans in that city organized a Bryan club and gave their united support to the candidate who contended that if free coinage is good for the country as the Republicans admit it to be by promising to restore it if foreign nations assent, then the United States should act on their own responsibility and benefit the country at once. This Silver Republican club, every member of which is opposed to the McKinley Administration, as they were to the Cleveland Administration, as there is no difference in their financial policy, will receive Mr. Bryan and entertain him at a banquet during his stay in the city. They are among the most enthusiastic Silver men in the United States and they propose maintaining their organization, which is steadily being increased by accessions from the Republican ranks, until 1900 when they will give their votes to the gallant young statesman for President with the full assurance that he will be elected.

The resolution appropriating $50,000 from the National Treasury for the relief of destitute American citizens in Cuba was not signed by Reed until yesterday, and the Americans in Cuba continue to suffer. As the resolution must be signed by the Speaker while Congress is in session, it did not become effective. The House meets only twice a week, to prevent the members from discussing the financial and other measures which are objectionable to the gold men, and the starving Americans in Cuba will have to live on hope until Congress is again in session.

Congressional.

WASHINGTON, May 24.—Representative McMillan of Tennessee to-day introduced in the House a resolution providing for the consideration of the resolutions recognizing the belligerency of the Cuban insurgents "from day to day until they are disposed of." The resolution was referred to the Committee on Rules, but it is not likely that the committee will consider it. The majority of the leaders will decide for themselves when it is proper to act on the resolution.

The House adjourned at noon on account of the death of Senator Earle of South Carolina.

The Interstate Commerce Commission powerless.

WASHINGTON, May 24.—The Supreme Court decided two cases to-day, holding that the United States Commerce Commission has no power to prescribe rates on railroads which it may control in the future. The cases were those of the Commission vs. the Cincinnati & New Orleans Railroad Company and the Florida & Western Company. The Supreme Court decision is construed to mean that the Interstate Commerce Commission has no power to pass upon the rates before they are put into effect.

The Cuban Relief Resolution Signed.

WASHINGTON, May 24.—The resolution appropriating $50,000 for the relief of American citizens in Cuba reached the White House at 12:30 to-day, after being signed in both Houses while they were in open session. The President signed the resolution immediately and will at once consult with the State Department respecting the adoption of measures of relief in addition to those taken in the last week, when the Council General was authorized to draw upon the State Department for the procurement of immediate supplies.

The Viavi Cause.

It is impossible to take Viavi into the system without benefit. It is purely vegetable and as a nerve and tissue builder has no equal. It can be used with perfect safety by the most delicate, and is used upon the smallest children.

SAW LINCOLN KILLED

WILLIAM WITHERS, LEADER OF FORD'S ORCHESTRA, TELLS HIS EXPERIENCE.

Had Written a Song For That Particular Performance—Was on the Stage and Booth Struck Him With a Dagger—He Was First to Identify the Assassin.

At the Professional Woman's League, while the members were diligently over the novelties being made for the coming season, the question came up, "Is there anybody living who saw Lincoln assassinated?"

Immediately everybody had something to say about somebody else who had a friend who was at the theater that night. The most interesting story was told of William Withers, Jr., now orchestra leader for Mr. Daly, but at the time of the assassination leader of the orchestra of Ford's theater.

Mr. Withers enjoys the distinction of having not only been at the theater the night Lincoln was assassinated, but of having been pierced by the dagger of the assassin just a few moments after Booth had fired the shot that made Lincoln a martyr. Every time he goes to Washington he is requested to tell this story, and, although many and varied are the recitals of this thrilling event, Mr. Withers' is somewhat different from the others. Here is the story as he tells it in the Washington Post:

"I was leader of the orchestra at the time, and the president was to witness the performance of 'Our American Cousin.' I thought that, as I had the occasion, I would compose a song. So I did. It was entitled 'Honor to Our Soldiers' and dedicated to the president. The song was sung between two of the acts, and I had engaged and the orchestra, who were to be notified by the manager of the theater."

"As I was on my way to the theater I met John Wilkes Booth just in front of George Henry's saloon, which adjoined the theater. It was a sultry night, and Booth had his overcoat over his head. 'Good evening, Billy,' he said. 'Have you had something?'"

"As I was leaving to enter the theater Booth remained. 'I'll witness the performance tonight,' I noticed nothing unusual about his demeanor and subsequently saw him as I was coming out for the overture."

"From the president, his wife, Major Rathbone and Robert and Tad entered their box. I signaled for 'Hail to the Chief,' and the audience cheered, and the president turned smilingly and bowed. Then he seated himself, and with his accustomed modesty drew the curtains half across the box."

"After the first act J. P. Wright, the stage manager, sent me word he would be unable to have the special song sung at that time, but he would try to have it rendered between the second and third acts. A similar message was sent to me at the close of the second act, and I became somewhat exercised. I started to prepare the stage when I saw Booth on the gallery walking down the aisle in the direction of the president's box. He was exceedingly attentive toward the act, for the curtain had again gone up. I concentrated a scene shifter, Spangler, when time I afterward learned was to turn out the lights in the theater as soon as the shot was fired. He obstructed my passage."

"What do you want here?" he demanded. In reply I told him it was none of his business. Mr. Wright appearing, Spangler left his position on the stage alongside the box in which was the apparatus for illuminating the theater. I closed the lid of the box and sat upon it to talk to the manager, unconscious that I was spoiling the plan."

"Mr. Wright told me the song would be sung at the close of the performance, and Miss Keene had sent word to the president requesting him to stay to hear it."

"I was just about to return to the orchestra when the crack of a revolver startled me. All was quiet instantly. I saw a man jump from the president's box on to the stage. It was Booth. He ran directly toward the door leading into the alley. This course brought him right in my path. He had a dagger in his hand, and he waved it threateningly. He evidently did not recognize me, for he appeared like a maniac. His eyes seemed starting from their sockets, and his hair was disheveled."

"With head down, he ran toward me and cried, 'Let me pass!' He slashed at me, and the knife cut through my coat, vest and underclothing. He struck again, the point of the weapon penetrating the back of my neck, and the blow brought me to the floor. I watched him make his exit into the alley and caught sight of the horse, held by 'Peanut John.'"

"The commotion in the audience was something terrible. Several actors, including Harry Hawko, rushed out, and a man who proved to be a detective killed me up and said, 'I arrest you.'"

"What's this all about?" I asked. "I'm stabbed." I was quickly told what was the matter. The thought flashed across my mind that Booth was the assassin."

"I was taken to the police station, and my deposition was received in the presence of Mayor Wallace. That was I believe, the first intimation that they had of the identity of the murderer. I was at the trial of the conspirators and the second to give testimony. My wound healed in a short time."

A Hint to Wives.

In the course of a paper on the diversity of interests and occupations which characterize modern women of society and their husbands, Harriet Monroe draws attention to a fact which may not be without interest for some of these wives. She declares that social intercourse is impossible without common interest. "Because the wife and daughters of a man of the world know nothing of affairs, have never felt that thrill which follows one's touch upon 'the pulse of the machine,' it often happens that he is on terms of more confidential comradeship with his stenographer than with them." The stenographer, like her employer, has felt the fascination of business. She knows her employer on the side of his real life, appreciates his worth and understands his slightest reference to it. Thus 'the women of his family, absorbed in their own pleasures, charities or fads, gradually become to the husband and father mere household pets and decoration, sometimes even the burdens of his life, while his stenographer becomes his confidential and helpful friend."—San Francisco Argonaut.

She Is Called "Hat Matron."

The mayor of Bridgeport has appointed Miss Susan Watson to the new and novel office of hat matron. Her duties take her to all the theaters, where she secures a commanding position and "views the landscape o'er." Any woman wearing tall hats are immediately pointed upon and requested to remove them. If they refuse, Miss Watson takes down their names and reports them to all the theatrical managers in town, who promptly refuse to sell front seats to them over after. Of course if they repent and wear low crowned hats or none at all they can get front seats. But until they do the only reserved seats they can get are in the rear.

Women Fire Workers.

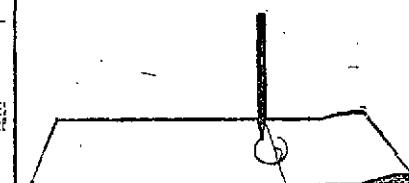

In the little town of Nasso, in Sweden the firemen happen to be women, however paradoxical that sounds. The place is only a little village, and four enormous tubs constitute the "waterworks." One hundred and fifty women make up the fire department, and one of the duties consists in always keeping the tubs filled with water. The women fire workers, it is said, and know how to handle a fire with as little confusion as possible.

Ring Around the Rosy.

Jack was singing quietly by the fire the other day, doing no harm to anybody, when a young person who thought well of himself rushed in and attacked him with the assertion, "You can't do that."

The boy held out a card, upon which was drawn a dot in the center of a circle, and repeated his challenge: "You can't draw that figure without taking your pencil off the paper."

Jack looked up and smiled. He bent one end of the card over, made a dot with his pencil on the face of it just at the margin of the part folded over, after which he moved the pencil across the overlying paper to the point where he wished to begin his circle. Then he let the line slip off on to the face of the card, allowed the bent over portion to fly back and finished the 'ring around the rosy' without once taking his pencil off the paper. This done, he handed the card to his friend and went on studying the fire, without a word. It is great to be great.—Harper's Round Table.

Two Wishes.

"I wish that the teacher had lessons to learn," said Molly, the wife little elf.

"She would know they were hard and besorery if she had to do them herself."

And the teacher, at home in the gloaming, sighed gently, "I wish that they know, The dear little children, how easy 'Tis just to have lessons to do."

The origin of soap is a mystery, but we have many evidences of its antiquity. It is mentioned at least twice in the Bible, under the name of "bounth," perfectly corresponding to several centuries before Christ.
